SUB-CELLAR DAIRY.

How to Keep Cream in Good Condition in a Hot Climate. The underground method of cooling a dairy has been tried without much success for some years, and more especially when it was first introduced about a dozen years ago. The plan was to dig a deep ditch like a drain, and lay large tiles or a stone channel in it connected at the further end with the open air by a pipe to supply the draft. But the device was opposed to scientific principles and chiefly to that one on which it is impossible to cause a cold current of air to rise in a warm atmosphere, or to make a warm current flow downwards into a cold, underground passage by any natural influence. To do this is to oppose that universal law by which lighter air rises and colder and denser air falls-the law of gravitation in fact. But it is possible to get a cool current of air in this way by some mechanical device which will either draw the air through the underground channel, or force it through it. Many devices have been tried for thus ventilating houses, as by burning something in a suitable pipe above the channel and thus producing a current, a part of which is diverted into the apartment to be cooled. But none of them has become practically useful. The most effective way of overcoming the difficulty described, so far as I have learned, is to use a two-storied cellar, so to speak, or what may be called a sub-cellar, the lower part of which is at least 12 or 15 feet below the surface. and is closed against the upper and warmer air, by a perfectly close floor having a tightly fitting trap door in it and a stairway down to the bottom. The cellar is lined with brick or stone and kept whitewashed with lime to increase the light which comes through a glass window in the floor. I have seen several such cellars in the south, one of which struck me as being excellent for the purpose of a dairy for which it was used. The cut shows how it was

EUB-CELLAR FOR CREAM IN HOT CLIMATE

The upper part was used for a churning and store room, and had a broad stairway led down into it, and another into the lower one. Two tiers of shelves were made on three sides of this lower part, and these held the milk and butter. The owner told me the temperature did not vary more than two or three degrees the whole year. The only objection to it was that at times it was damp, but on my suggestion to use fresh burned lime to absorb the water-which it does very greedily - this fault was wholly removed, with the consequent mustiness that troubled him in the hottest part of the summer. This cellar had been in use for several years, and had been found quite satisfactory. No doubt it might meet the case in question, if the soil is quite free from water to the required depth. This is obviously a sine quo non, unless the drainage could be secured at a moderate expense. Some coolness may be secured by using salt water or other solutions of crystalline and saline substances. A lowering of the temperature of six or eight degrees may be made by dissolving a pound of salt in ten gallons of water, and more by adding sulphate of soda to the sait. But in practice all these modes of refrigeration have been found inconvenient or undesirable in Solid gold lamps and vases in wrought other ways. I have experimented with more costly and troublesome than ice. The common ice machines may be made useful if the dairy is large enough to stand the expense, as they have been found indispensable in breweries on account of their cheapness. So far, however, all attempts to get up a cheap small machine for cooting dairies have

RETAIN YOUR SENSES!

Could You If You Were Confined in an Asylum?

Some Interesting Facts from a Prominent Scientific Man Who Has Had a Most Valuable Experience.

(Chicago Journal.) We sometimes see in the papers a thrilling account of where a perfectly sane person has been confined in an asylum. Think of it, reader! How long would you retain vour senses if you were confined with a ing like it. 25 cents a box. number of lunatics, night and day, and yet a Jersey mother, and while one is a think of the physicians in charge of these patients who are compelled, day by day and year by year, to live among them. What wonderful opportunities they have for studying characteristics and vagaries; what a wonderful chance for learning the miseries of life and how best to overcome

We are brought to these reflections by a conversation lately had with Dr. J. C. Spray, of 163 State Street, Chicago. For apolis, Indiana, at $1.50 per year. nearly ten years Doctor Spray was in charge of the Jefferson, now Dunning, Institute, at Dunning, Ill. This tremendous institution contained about twelve hundred patients in the Insane Department, and fifteen hundred in the infirmary. Among this large number of persons there were a vast number of physical ailments. Dr. Spray, speaking about it, said:

"I traced the great cause for most of the mental and indeed physical disorders very earefully, and while some authorities make an estimate that seventy-five per cent. of the people in the United States are afflicted with some form of kidney disease, I do not think that the rate is so high, taking all ages into consideration. Before middle life FRANCE has made a law imposing the | it is less than seventy-five per cent but penalty of death on persons convicted after middle life it is, I should think, fully of using dynamite for the destruction that percentage." "This is something terrible, Doctor. Few people can certainly be aware that so large a percentage exists!" The Doctor thought a moment and then said: "It is a fact not generally recognized that where a person has diseased kidneys and the organs fail to perform their functions of removing the waste and the impurities from the system, it soon produces melancholia. As a result our asylums are filled to overflowing, while if the people would strike at the root of the matter and see that their kidneys were in good order, there would be fewer patients in the asylums. I have noticed that a large portion of all paresis cases had kidney difficulties." "What have you found, Doctor, to be the standard and most reliable remedy in such cases!" Dr Spray spoke with great confidence He said: "Having so many cases to treat, is danger of the plant becoming extinct | I tried various remedies, and after a long and exhaustive trial, finally decided that Warner's Safe Cure was the best, most effective and most reliable remedy. I found it specially reliable in cases of incipient Bright's disease. It is certain to stop it, and even in the advanced conditions it allays the disease, and to my surprise at first, cured many cases. Before structural changes set in, it is certain to cure, if properly administered."

"Has your experience while at the asylum.

of albumen in the urine of a patient, I prescribe the Safe Cure, and in nearly every instance where I notice indications of nerv ous troubles, I analyze the urine, and almost invariably fir d that it is caused by some af fection of the kidneys. I now have a patient to whom I am giving the Safe Cure, and find that it is having the desired effect. Some time ago a gentleman came to me, who had been examined for life insurance. and traces of albumen were found. I advised the use of the Safe Cure, and he passed the examination without difficulty after having used it."

"I understand, then, Doctor, that you at tribute a large percentage of the ills of life to some disease of the kidneys, and that you have found the remedy of which you speak the most effective in such cases '

"Yes. I have no hesitation in saying that Warner's Safe Cure has my unqualified endorsement. I use it constantly, and would not do so unless I thought it possessed curative qualities." The high standing, wide experience and great success of Dr. Spray make his words exceedingly impressive. Their sincerity cannot be questioned, and their truthful ness is absolute. Impressed with this fact and realizing the importance of the same, I have transcribed his words in full and give them herewith.

-The Portland fishing schooner Hatie Maud was hauled out on the marine railway recently for painting and cleaning, and it was found that she needed a new garboard strake-the plank next the keel. When the old plank was taken off a curious discovery was made. A cobblestone, weighing a couple of pounds, was rolled between the plankng and the ceiling of the vessel, and from constant motion with the rolling and pitching of the schooner had nearly worn through in one spot.
